INSPIRATION

This armchair comes from Marcel Wanders' idea to create a product, suitable both for home and contract projects, that creates an intimate space.

A flower, a tulip that "embraces" who lays down on it. The name represents an immediate reference to the Netherlands, Marcel Wanders' home country.

The rotation of the base allows the person who sits on the product to turn the armchair towards the most favorite perspective.

PLUS

Wanders' Tulip Armchair is the result of a mix of technology and craftsmanship.

The shell is produced in molded fiberglass, where are inserted the seat and the back (made in soft polyurethane, injected in a mould).

The upholstery is particularly complex and it requires various phases that have to be realized with great attention and expertise.

After having sprinkled gluing material on the shell, the cover (preventively sewn) has to be carefully put on. All the finishing's phases are entirely realized by hand.

Wanders' Tulip Armchair / Marcel Wanders / 2010

Born in Boxtel, the Netherlands in 1963, Marcel Wanders developed his experience in the design field first in Droog Design, then with Wanders Wonders brand, and currently with Moooi. He collaborates with Authentics, Flos, Magis, Mandarina Duck, and Salviati. Impulsive and always enthusiastic, he creates delicate and light objects as naturally as technology became second nature for the human race. Marcel Wanders believes it is important to learn about materials, to know what they can do, how they are produced and how they are processed, and in this way he creates his projects through a synthesis of handicraft and industrial technology.
